SHARING YOUR HEALTH INFORMATION

The practice keeps your health information (your NHS care records) on a secure computer system. This means that Doctors, Nurses and other Health Professionals at the practice have the information they need to help them make decisions about your care.

We are asking you if you agree to share your health information with other NHS services that provide your medical care.

If you DO CONSENT, we can share your health information securely between the NHS services you are registered with, such as different hospital departments. This means that clinical staff caring for you in those different departments can see all your health information and are able to provide safer, quicker and better care for you. If there is a particular consultation that they do not wish other services to see, you can ask the doctor to keep that private.

If you DO NOT CONSENT, we can not share your health information with the other NHS services providing your care. Therefore, you will have to ensure that these other services have all important information they may need about you.

This will all be strictly controlled and audited and you can change your mind at any time
